Project Name	Auto-Ticket Classification using Flow Designer
Maximum Marks	4 Marks

Scenario

A student experiences an IT problem, raises a School IT Ticket, the system classifies the request automatically, and the helpdesk continues the service process.

Customer Journey

Stage	Typical experience	Interactions / touchpoints	Goal / motivation	Positive moment	Negative moment	Area of opportunity
Entice	Student notices an IT problem and decides it needs help.	Classroom, library, lab or office; may ask a teacher or staff member.	Help me report the issue without needing technical knowledge.	The problem is recognized and a support route is available.	Student may not know how to classify the issue.	Explain the purpose of the ticket service clearly.
Enter	Student opens the School IT Tickets module.	ServiceNow interface and School IT Tickets application.	Help me reach the support form quickly.	A dedicated application entry point exists.	The service interface may be unfamiliar.	Keep navigation simple and consistent.
Engage	Student enters Caller and Short Description and submits the request.	School IT Ticket form.	Help me submit the issue with minimum effort.	The student can provide a short issue description.	Manual category selection may be confusing.	Use automatic classification.
Exit	The new record is evaluated by Flow Designer and Category/Subcategory are populated for supported keywords.	Published Auto Classify School IT Tickets flow and ticket record.	Help me know that my request has been classified.	Automatic classification reduces repetitive triage.	Vague descriptions may require manual review.	Expand supported rules and add fallback handling.
Extend	Caller receives an acknowledgment while the helpdesk processes the request.	Email notification and School IT Tickets list.	Help me know the request was received and what happens next.	Immediate confirmation is provided.	Resolution still depends on helpdesk processing.	Add status and assignment notifications later.
